Chapter 1 by Judith Lane

One dark and stormy night i was at my friends house and we were hanging out in her room. When we were getting ready for bed we herd a sound outside of her window, but at first we just thought it was the wind then it started getting closer and closer. As the sound got closer to us we walked more to the window too. Then a huge strike of lighting lit up the sky and something appeared in front of the window. We screamed and backed up from the window really fast. We didn't know what we saw it just happened so fast. So i told one of the girls to go look out of the window so see what it could have been. So she went to go look and she didn't see anything. Two other girls went to go look and the didn't see anything either. So after everyone went to go look I went to go look. AS i got closer to the window something appeared in the room and said leave or you die. So after he said that the lights went out and when it came back on one of the girls was gone. After that girl was gone we made a plan about what we were going to do if the lights went off again. But after an hour they didn't go off
